

Re-Define is Looking for Research or Policy Managers/Associates/Interns

A leading international Think Tank, Re-Define (www.re-define.org) is looking for staff for its new Brussels office

Do you want to work on the cutting edge themes of our time? Do you want to have a lasting influence? Do you want your work to matter? Do you want to work in a high paced but dynamic and collegial environment? Do you like responsibility? Do you wish you could change the way the world works? Now you can...

About Us

Re-Define, a growing and influential international Think Tank, is setting up a new office in Brussels.

We advise several G-20 and non G-20 governments, international agencies and non governmental organizations on key policy issues.

We work with national finance ministries, development ministries, regulators and central banks, with EU institutions and with international institutions such as the UN, IMF and World Bank. We also work with Trade Unions and Development NGOs.

About the Role

The themes we work on are 1) financial system reform 2) macroeconomic and fiscal policy and 3) development and environmental finance and 4) EU governance and policy

We are looking to build capacity in Brussels in the functional areas of 1) Policy 2) Research 3) Advocacy 4) Networking & Institutional Relations 5) Media.

We are recruiting for flexible and multifunctional roles where you will be expected to:

1) follow the discussion of issues of interest to us and participate in relevant formal and informal legislative processes 2) influence the development of legislation through policy work, advocacy and a strategic use of media 3) contribute to building Re-Define's reputation and profile 4) manage key relationships with institutions and individuals

About you

You should be a dynamic self starter with experience in the relevant policy areas and a good knowledge and understanding of the EU institutional landscape.

While ideally you will have 2 -5 years of relevant work experience and an appropriate educational background we do have openings at different levels and your application would be considered for the position that best suits your profile.

You should apply only if 1) you are teeming with ideas 2) are action oriented 3) can operate in a flexible and independent manner 4) can handle pressure and 5) are willing to grow with the institution.

Public speaking and networking skills are a big plus as is fluency in key EU languages. Please email jobs@re-define.org with CV plus cover note by the 1st of March. We have a rolling deadline and are always looking for people but the sooner you send your CV the more likely we will bring you on board.
